Phil Tilden, CTO, One Day Decisions

Phil Tilden (CTO) has over 30 years of high level computer programming and communications experience. His language capabilities include PHP for Web Servers, MySQL, HTML, CSS and Javascript with multi-proficiency across Windows, BSD UNIX and Apache web server platforms.

Phil's software creations include applications for websites, server to server communication and co-ordination, design development and implementation of website administration software, design development and implementation of relational databases for websites and web applications, (his patented software was deployed by NBC for streaming video via email for the 1996 Olympic Games).

Along with a broad understanding of systems analysis, and the design, programming, implementation of web based systems, Phil's experience allows him to manage and direct technical teams with efficiency, practicality and respect.

Phil co-founded RadicalMail.com, a streaming multi-media email creation and tracking service. He invented and was the sole author of the Perl, Javascript, and HTML code that powers the mail delivery and tracking systems, and the web based "Builder" system that allows clients to create and deploy HTML emails. He is listed as Inventor on three US Patents.
